THES-300. Master of Arts in Religious Studies Supervised Reading and Research. 1 cr.

This course allows students to complete their theses once they have finished all other degree requirements. THES-375.

MARS Colloquy. 3 cr.

The MARS Colloquy includes contemporary readings in religious and theological studies. Research and writing methodologies will be emphasized to enable students to develop their MARS thesis research proposals. Students will prepare and present seminar papers in class based upon these proposals. In consultation with students and potential faculty supervisors, the MARS colloquy leader will assign an appropriate thesis advisor to each student. THES -378.
